Overview

Residential Service Agencies

Residential Service Agency ---

- Business that employs or contracts with individuals to provide at least one home health care service for compensation to an unrelated sick or disabled individual
 - Excludes home health agencies, Medicaid personal care providers, and household or family support services
- Two types of RSAs:
 - Skilled Nursing with Aides
 - Other

Skilled Nursing with Aides ---

- Level 1: Registered Nurse (RN) supervision of aides to provide personal care without medication management
- Level 2: RN supervision of aides to provide personal care with medication management
- Level 3: Complex care provided by RNs, Licensed Practical Nurses (LPN), and supervision of aides

RSA Others

- Examples:
 - Durable Medical Equipment (DME)
 - wheelchairs, CPAP machines, and oxygen tanks
 - Rehab
 - Physical, occupational, and speech therapies
 - RNs and LPNs can provide care without aides under a RSA Others license.

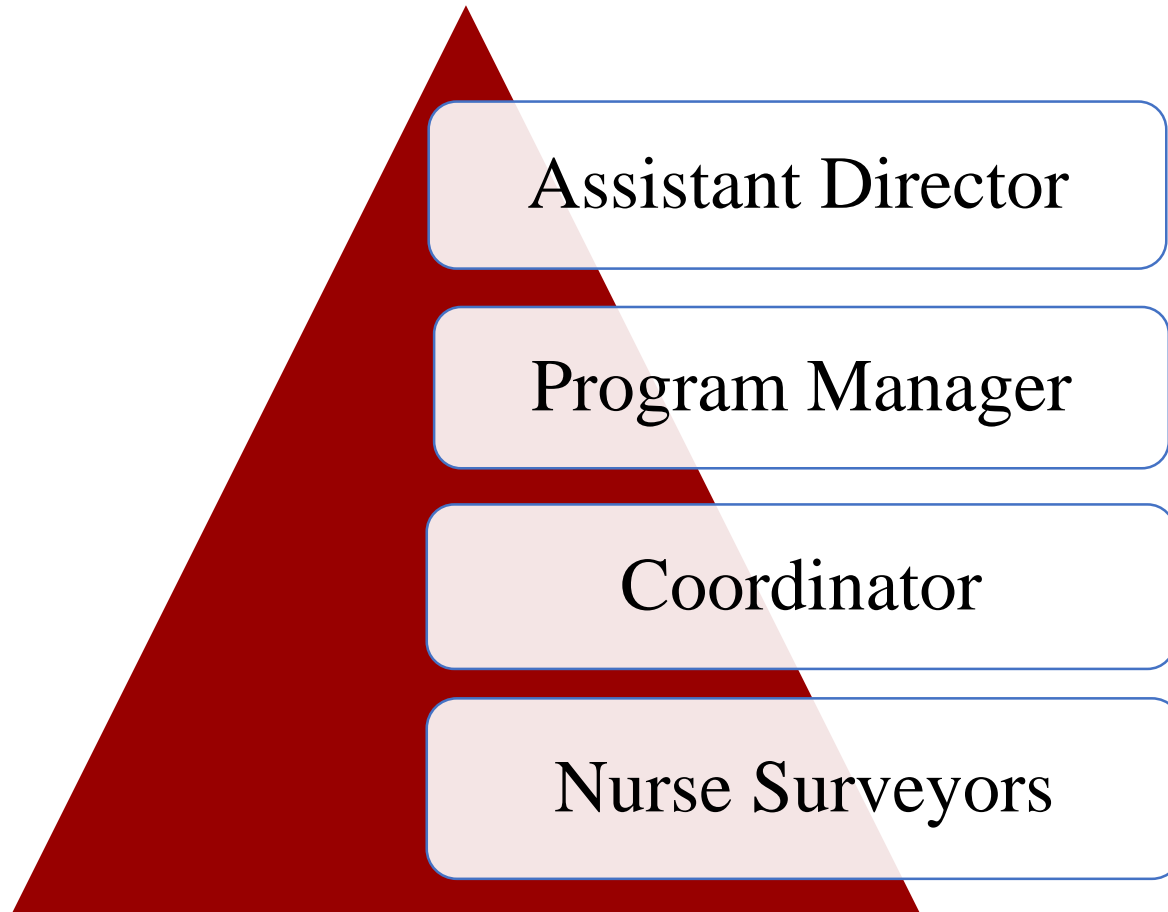

Home Health Agency (HHA) —

- While a Residential Service Agency provides services in a patient or client's home, it is not a home health agency.
- Home Health Agencies provide a higher level of care and are held to more stringent regulations.
- Home Health Agencies participate in the Medicare program and with health insurance companies.

Home Health Agency (HHA) —

- HHA is an entity that provides centrally administered skilled nursing services, home health aide services, and at least one other home health care service.
- If an entity fits the definition of a HHA, then it must obtain a license as an HHA— not an RSA license.
- You must obtain a Certificate of Need from the Maryland Health Care Commission before applying for a HHA license.

Residential Service Agencies

A residential service agency (RSA) is a business that employs or contracts with individuals to provide at least one home health care service for compensation to an unrelated sick or disabled individual. It excludes home health agencies, Medicaid personal care providers, and household or family support services.

There are several types of RSAs that may provide a variety of services. Some agencies have both nurses that provide skilled nursing care and certified caregivers that provide assistance with activities of daily living, such as bathing, grooming, and dressing. Individuals can contract with private duty agencies for as many hours as needed, including overnight care of 24 hours, 7 days a week. Other RSAs provide physical therapy, occupational therapy or speech therapy. Some RSAs provide durable medical equipment (DME), including wheelchairs, hospital beds, CPAP machines, and oxygen.

Note that a Home Health Agency (HHA) is an entity that provides skilled nursing services, home health aide services, and at least one other home health care service, all of which services are centrally administered. An RSA may only provide two of these services, such as skilled nursing with aides or physical and occupational therapy. If an entity fits the definition of a home health agency, then it must be licensed as a home health agency and may not instead choose to obtain an RSA license. In Maryland, home health agencies require a certification of need (CON) from the Maryland Health Care Commission prior to licensure.
